Rosie Cooper MP with Maureen Mills at the fracking meeting

MP still against fracking despite huge hikes in energy bills

WEST Lancashire MP Rosie Cooper has reaffirmed her position opposing any plans to apply for fracking permits in the UK, despite the recent big rises in energy prices.

There have been reports that the Government may consider allowing fracking again after the UK imposed sanctions prohibiting the import of Russian gas and oil.

Ms Cooper has campaigned against fracking, and publicly objected to an application for a fracking site in West Lancashire made to Lancashire County Council in 2019. The application, by fracking firm Aurora, was withdrawn in 2020.

Ms Cooper MP said: "The much-needed measures taken to halt the UK's reliance on Russian oil and gas has led to questions around sourcing alternatives.

"However, I remain wholly against fracking and will oppose any further applications for fracking made in my constituency, as I have always done.

"In 2020 I welcomed Aurora's decision to withdraw their plans to frack in West Lancashire and I stand by my statement that there remains no evidence that fracking can be carried out safely in the UK.

"There is no doubt that the UK needs to take steps to secure alternative energy sources, but the solution cannot and should not be a method that has been shown to cause earthquakes."

Driving force behind creation of Queenscourt Hospice steps down

Report by Tom Martin

A LEADING figure behind the creation of Queenscourt Hospice, who has been described as the charity's 'driving force' is stepping down after 30 years of service.

Dr Karen Groves MBE revealed she is retiring from her role as Medical and Education Director after spending three decades working for the Town Lane-based hospice.

Dr Groves and her sister, Sarah, were the "inspiration and driving force" behind the creation of Queenscourt Hospice 30 years ago, when there were no real palliative care services in Southport.

Dr Groves said: "Just as when Queenscourt began, more than 30 years ago, when there were no real palliative care services in this area, we still need to try fill the gaps that exist for those who need us and we need to work out how best to do that, with the resources we have available.

"We hope that Queenscourt will continue to serve the people of West Lincs, Southport & Formby, their families and their health professionals for many years to come.

"That is of course dependent upon you, the people of this area, your financial contributions, your ongoing support, your volunteering, your prayers and good wishes, your continued recognition of the work that Queenscourt does, has done and will continue to do.

"Once again, thank you for all you do, in whatever way, on behalf of those who cannot thank you themselves." After qualifying as a medical doctor from Liverpool University in 1979, Dr Groves first identified the need for better end of life care after experiencing two particularly traumatic deaths in young women.

She went on to work as a GP in the Southport area for over 12 years and it was during this time that she and her sister Sarah, a nurse, sought advice from Dame Cicely Saunders, founder of the hospice movement in London.

On their return they inspired a small group of people to begin fundraising and after much hard work, planning permission for Queenscourt Hospice was granted in December 1988.

Mayor Cllr Maureen Fearn cut the first turf on March 14, 1990 and planted a copper beech tree which still grows to the left of the entrance to what is now the Terence Burgess Education Centre.

The hospice building was handed over on March 1, 1991 and the next two months were spent fitting it out ready for occupation. Queenscourt opened its Day Therapy and five inpatient beds on June 1, 1991 and later that year increased to a 10-bed ward.

The following year, Diana Princess of Wales officially opened Queenscourt. Dr Groves had been a volunteer doctor at the hospice for five years, while still working full time as a GP, until she was appointed as Medical Officer in 1995.

In 1996, she became the first local consultant in Palliative Medicine; in 2012, Dr Groves was awarded an honorary degree from Edge Hill University and in 2014 received an MBE for Services to Palliative Care.

Call for residents to join Great British Spring Clean

RESIDENTS who want to help clean up litter in their community are being invited to join the council in supporting the Great British Spring Clean.

The campaign is now up and running until April 10 and research shows that helping a local litter pick benefits mental health as well as keeping streets and beauty spots clean.

If people organise a clean-up in West Lancashire, the Council can provide bin bags, litter pickers and a drop off point for the waste they collect. Please email environmental.enforcementofficers@west-lancs.gov.uk to make arrangements.

gregation was supplied with refreshments provided by the Christ Church family.

'Autism hour' held at barbers helps children get haircut

Report by Henry James

A BURSCOUGH barbers held an 'autism hour' to help children on the autistic spectrum reduce their anxiety while having their hair cut.

The Grooming Guru's Gents Hair Salon, on Liverpool Road North, introduced the initiative - which also aims to help youngsters with other special educational needs and disabilities (SEND) - for such children to have their hair cut in a quiet, calm, and patient environment.

It was particularly relevant last week due to World Autism Acceptance Week (March 28 - April 3).

With more than 20 years' experience as professional hair stylists, Karl and Paula Hunter, the husband-and-wife team who own the salon, opened in 2002 and introduced their Autism Hour in 2018.

They developed the idea after receiving an enquiry from the parent of an autistic child whose son found visiting the barbers a challenging experience.

After discussing how best to minimise the family's anxiety, Karl and Paula opened their salon early on a Sunday morning, when there were no other clients present, and slowly introduced the processes and tools involved in hairdressing until the child felt comfortable having his hair cut.

Karl said: "It doesn't matter how long it takes; we just want to build trust and bond with a client. Seeing how relieved and happy the child's family is after a successful visit is incredibly rewarding."

Word spread and families with children on the autistic spectrum now travel from as far as North Wales to have their hair cut at the salon.

Parent, Ryan Dunphy, said: "I've been taking my severely autistic son here for years. Paula and Karl go out of their way every single time to make sure he has the calm environment that he needs."

"They've closed the shop and shut the blinds, come in early and stayed behind late, all to give my little boy a haircut. They are fantastic human beings and brilliant barbers."

Book tells more about history of HMS Ringtail

Follow-up work tells of its days as wartime and air station up to it being a retail park

Report by Henry James

A SECOND book has been written about the former naval air station, HMS Ringtail, in Burscough.

The book is called HMS Ringtail, Royal Navy Air Squadron Burscough, Ringtail-Retail and it has been written by Lawrence Critchley and Michael Dawson who wrote HMS Ringtail A Pearl Under the Clouds in 2019.

The book is packed with colour illustrations and stories from its role in the Second World War when it was an active naval air station.

It continues through the decades right up to the present day and the new Ringtail Retail Park.

The book explains how from 1943 to 1946, "the population of Burscough village increased by thousands as the Fleet Air Arm built a naval air station on the outskirts of the village."

Mr Dawson said that it tells of how "for three eventful years, 650 acres of former farm land hosted almost every type of naval aircraft."

HMS Ringtail was commissioned on September 1 1943 and while it was in operation more than 40 squadrons were attached for short periods for "working up to operational standard, aircraft type conversion or disembarking from aircraft carriers in the River Mersey."

The book also contains stories from the old Naval Camp in the 1950s when it was used to accommodate families.

The navy gave up the station in 1957 and the airfield changed back to agriculture.

There is also information about the Barracuda Parachute Display Team in the early 1980s, 2013s Battle of the Atlantic Celebration, the core collection of the Navy Wings aircraft, the Booths superstore and development and how Ringtail is remembered today, plus much more.

The book costs £18.50 (+£3 p&p if required). Call 07795 578025 to arrange collection or pay by bank transfer, or email wilsonmiley@live.co.uk.

Staff parking charges reintroduced at Southport and Ormskirk Hospitals

STAFF parking charges have been reintroduced at Southport and Ormskirk Hospitals after Government funding which supported free staff parking ended on March 31.

Free car parking for staff and visitors was introduced in April 2020 as part of the Government's Covid-19 support measures. Free parking for visitors ended in December 2020.

In line with the latest Govt guidance, the Trust doesn't charge staff who are registered disabled and those who work nights.

Health secretary Sajid Javid has said: "On behalf of the Government, I would like to record my thanks to everyone who has worked tirelessly to keep people safe over the last two years and whose efforts have enabled us to move to the next stage of the Covid-19 response."

"The Government will continue to work together with our partners to keep all of these measures under review."

However, the decision has not been met favourably with the unions. Rachel Harrison, GMB National Officer, said: "Health workers are on their knees following a two-year pandemic – they need help and support, not being repeatedly kicked when they are down by the Government."

Police officer who had secret sexual relationship with rape victim is jailed for three years

Report by Lynda Roughley

A POLICE constable from Parbold who formed a secret sexual relationship with a vulnerable rape victim and later tried to thwart a police raid on her home, was jailed for three years on Monday, April 4.

A Judge told Simon Rose, 48, that he had let down his colleagues and the general public.

"You have breached not only the trust of your colleagues, people who saw you as a friend, but the trust the public expect and are entitled to have in police officers," said Judge David Swinnerton.

Judge Swinnerton told Rose, who had been an officer with Greater Manchester Police since 2007, that victims of sexual abuse feel under great pressure about reporting matters to the authorities.

Rose, of Burnside, had been convicted of misconduct in public office and attempting to pervert the course of justice after a nine day trial in January.

The judge said Rose admitted in cross-examination that forming a sexual or emotional relationship with the victim was entirely wrong.

The judge pointed out that the defendant had carried out the clandestine relationship "behind your partner's back and behind your colleagues backs."

Liverpool Crown Court heard that when a search warrant for firearms was to be executed at her home Rose, who genuinely believed it was a fruitless mission, asked colleagues to ignore anything they might find.

Judge Swinnerton said he accepted his motivation was to cover up his "own shameful secret."

But he added that Rose "had been prepared to compromise his colleagues" to prevent it coming out.

Vanessa Thomson, prosecuting, said Rose had been attached to the Salford division of GMP and was "a highly respected, outgoing police officer."

He met the woman in May 2012 in his role as a specially trained officer involved in dealing with rape and sexual assault allegations. She alleged she had been raped at knifepoint after being taken away in a vehicle by two men though the case later did not proceed.

Their relationship endured for a number of years and was hidden from his colleagues until October 2019 when her name came under the spotlight in respect of a lawful execution of a search warrant at her home, said Miss Thomson.

After his behaviour came to light and the woman was interviewed she told how their relationship became sexual a few months after their first meeting and they had sex on three or four occasions.

The woman told how she had had strong feelings for Rose and that he had discussed them being together even though he had a partner. When she embarked on a new relationship, her relationship with Rose turned to close friendship which lasted for a number of years.

Sarah Barlow, defending, said that the couple's relationship had been "a genuine friendship" but she did not dispute the victim's distress.

The court heard that he has lost his relationship with his partner as well as his job.

PC Simon Rose.

Disabled gymnasts hoping to travel to international comp

Report by Henry James

SPARTAC, a club for gymnasts with a disability based at Edge Hill University, is raising funds to enable their gymnasts to represent Great Britain again at the 2023 World Gymnastrada in Amsterdam, plus national festivals and competitions.

Currently, the team comprises of 20 gymnasts whose ages range from 6 to 44 years, many of whom have been members of Spartac since its inception.

There are currently four mainstream gymnasts in the squad, and they hope to maintain this level of inclusion.

World Gymnastradas are held every four years and have more participants than the Olympic games, approximately 23,000 mainstream gymnasts, from all over the world.

Spartac is one of only a small number of teams to include gymnasts with a disability.

Amanda Brooks, welfare officer at Spartac Gymnastics Club said: "Unfortunately, the costs of these events are much higher than for most of the other teams."

"Due to the range of disabilities within the group, there is a need for a high level of support to enable our gymnasts to participate. In addition, where the gymnasts would normally have four years to prepare and fundraise, due to Covid that four years has been cut down to 18 months.

Members of Spartac

"The benefits to the gymnasts at Spartac are enormous. For many of them the friendships built in the gym forms a huge part of their social life both within Spartac and in the wider world."

The group will be holding a static bike ride at Jack Parker Cycles in Burscough on Saturday, April 23 and on Saturday, April 30 they will be holding a sponsored walk.

Aldi looking to hire 263 staff members

SUPERMARKET giant ALDI has announced that it is looking to hire 263 colleagues in Lancashire this year including at its store in Burscough.

The UK's fifth-largest supermarket is looking for people of all levels of experience to fill roles at its stores across the region, with salaries of up to £63,245.

This includes full-time positions such as stock assistant and store assistant, all the way up to deputy manager.

The recruitment push forms part of Aldi's nationwide expansion drive, with the supermarket expecting to create more than 2,000 new jobs nationwide, adding to the 7,000 permanent roles already created over the past two years.

Kelly Stokes, recruitment director at Aldi UK, said: "As we continue to grow and make Aldi accessible to even more shoppers this year, we need thousands more amazing colleagues across the country to make that possible. That includes job roles at current and new stores across Lancashire.

"Our colleagues are central to everything we do at Aldi and remain one of the key factors in our success, so we look forward to welcoming even more great people to the team to become a part of our success."

Store assistants at Aldi can earn at least £10.10 an hour nationally, and £11.55 inside the M25. Aldi remains the only supermarket to offer paid breaks; for the average store colleague, this is worth £750 a year.

No Such Thing As An Ugly Duckling

With breeding season now in full swing, we are expecting many young birds to start filling the grounds and nature reserve. First out of the blocks in this respect are our pair of Black Swans. These birds can be seen in the WOW area in our grounds and visitors have been thrilled to see the pair's three new cygnets. At the moment the cygnets are cuddly balls of white fluff but it won't be long before they start developing their adult plumage and, by the end of the year, they will look like their parents.

Our Black Swan pair are both seven years old but were only paired up two years ago. In captivity these birds could reach the ripe old age of forty. Last year they also produced three cygnets, which have since been moved on to other collections.

In the wild, Black Swan cygnets will stay with their parents until they are around nine months old. At this point, the adults will drive them out of their territory in order that they can get peace and quiet to have another family. The youngsters will eventually find their own territories.

These timescales are usually shorter among captive Black Swans and it may be as little as five months before we see some aggressive behaviour from the adults towards their young, trying to drive them away. Once we see this behaviour, the young birds will be taken out of the enclosure and we will find new homes for them. The Black Swan is a very popular captive bird and so we never have any problems finding good new homes for them.

When swimming, black swans hold their necks arched or erect and often carry their feathers or wings raised in an aggressive display. With our pair at Martin Mere, this behaviour is very apparent at the moment, as the male, especially, feels the need to protect his young from other birds and our visitors.

The black swan calls with a bugle-like sound, and also has a range of softer notes. At the moment, you may also hear them whistle which is a sound they make particularly during the breeding season.

It's a great time of year to come and see these swans, especially as the cygnets are so photogenic; they are certainly not ugly ducklings! For more information about all the activities happening over the Easter holidays please visit www.wwt.org.uk/martinmere

Partnership setting up group for residents hosting families

ORMSKIRK Community Partnership has been contacted by a resident who has registered on the government scheme to host a family from Ukraine, and she wants to find other people in the L39 postcode area who have also offered places.

The Partnership is now appealing for other people in and around Ormskirk who have registered so they can be put in touch with each other to share information and their experience.

OCP volunteer Bryan Pready said: "The aim is that residents who host families from Ukraine can work together and provide help and support to the Ukrainian families that come to Ormskirk."

"This is new for everyone, so we all have a lot to learn."

Ormskirk Community Partnership are looking for residents who have taken in Ukrainian families who are fleeing the war

"Some people have contacted OCP as a result of an announcement on our Facebook page, Ormskirk Community Partnership, but we think that there are many more that have registered."

"If you are one of those who has registered with the government to offer a home to Ukrainians and would like to join the group, please email us at enquiries@ormskirkcp.org.uk"

Friends climbed Snowden in high heels for Ukraine refugees

A LANCASHIRE County Council worker and two friends who braved the pain of climbing Snowden in high heeled boots have raised thousands of pounds to support humanitarian efforts in Ukraine.

Slawka Kluszczynska-Stepien, who works as a family group conference co-ordinator for the council, was part of a group of women who took on the highest mountain in Wales after feeling compelled to act in response to Russian forces launching a full-scale invasion of Ukraine.

Slawka and two others climbed to the top of the mountain in their heels, accompanied by two others wearing normal hiking boots and carrying food supplies.

The women, who all live in Lancashire and originate from Poland, all safely completed the climb and have so far raised more than £3,600.

Slawka said: "We can still remember living behind the iron curtain and being unable to have freedom of speech and freedom of movement."

"We don't want this for Ukrainians or the rest of Europe. We felt that challenging ourselves to hike up Snowden in heels, could help."

"My hometown is only 140 miles away from the Ukrainian border, so this conflict is very close to home."

All collected funds will go directly to the Polish Humanitarian Action, a Poland-based charity that currently works on the Polish/Ukrainian border and provides immediate help to all refugees from Ukraine including blankets, hot food, drinks, toiletries and medical support.

Research sheds light on woman who inspired teaching reform

RESEARCH at Edge Hill University has shed new light on a notable trail-blazing woman of the 20th century, and former student, who inspired major education reform in Liverpool.

Jessie Reid Crosbie MBE or 'the Little Missus' as she was affectionately known, was born in Everton in September 1876, and would go on to become a leading figure in the city's education sector and gain national recognition for her holistic approach to teaching.

In 1895, Jessie enrolled as a student at Edge Hill College, Liverpool.

More than 125 years since she studied at the college, Alyson Brown, history professor, has delved into the university's archive to uncover records on Jessie's time as a student, and her long association with the institution, shaping her teaching career.

Soon after the end of the First World War in 1918, Jessie became headmistress at a Liverpool at a time of widespread poverty and hunger.

Free milk and baths

She initiated a free milk scheme at her school and would give her pupils a cup of hot cocoa in the morning.

She also instituted the first school bath-house system in the country, which meant that 30 of her schoolchildren each day were given baths and went home clean.

Jessie remained headmistress at Salisbury Street for more than 25 years and was awarded an MBE in 1933.

She passed away aged 85 in January 1962, leaving behind her a lasting legacy to inspire future generations of teachers.

Health chiefs calling on more parents to get their 12-to-15-year-olds vaccinated

THE NHS in the North West has given a second Covid-19 vaccination to more than half of eligible 12-15 year olds to help protect them from the effects of coronavirus and health chiefs are urging parents to keep bringing their children forward to be vaccinated.

More than 93,600 young people – 53.2% of those who had their first dose before Christmas – have had their second dose at school or a community vaccination site during the first three months of this year.

Vaccination teams have been visiting schools since the start of term to offer second doses to those eligible, as well as first doses for those who missed the first round of vaccinations. Parents can also take their children to a range of vaccination sites to get their first or second doses.

Regional NHS vaccine leads said they were encouraged to see so many young people taking up the maximum protection of both doses.

All children aged 12 to 15 are eligible for a second dose of vaccine if it has been more than 12 weeks since their first jab, or 12 weeks following a positive

Dylan Gibson from Skelmersdale has received a Covid vaccination Covid-19 test result – whichever is later. If children miss their Covid-19 vaccination for any reason, they will be able to have it at a later date. Find out more at nhs.uk

Parents urged to use new school uniform recycling scheme

By Henry James

STUDENTS on Midstream's Pathways to Adulthood programme in Skelmersdale are urging parents from Brookfield Park Primary School to 'choose to re-use' with their new school uniform recycling enterprise 'Re-Uniform.'

Midstream are working in partnership with the school and their families, who are being encouraged to donate any school uniform that has been outgrown or is no longer needed.

Students from Midstream will then collect the pre-loved uniforms from school, launder and prepare them for re-sale. After a rigorous quality assurance check, the uniforms will then be re-sold upon request at a small cost.

Nicola Dilworth, a teacher on the Pathways to Adulthood programme, said: "Parents often have lots of uniform that may no longer fit their children but is still in perfectly good condition."

"After some initial research, I realised that this would be a great opportunity for our students to develop important life skills whilst reducing the impact that wasted uniform can have on the environment."

"We are pleased to be working with Brookfield Park Primary School on an initiative that will be rewarding for all involved."

Headteacher Sarah-Jane Whiteside, said: "It is important to us that our children look and feel like part of a school family and a smart uniform plays a crucial role."

"I am, however, aware of the implications of rising costs for families and as a school we are keen to find solutions to this issue, along with a passion to find a way to make school uniforms more sustainable for the planet."

"I was therefore delighted to support the idea of 'Re-Uniform' as an enterprise for the students at Midstream. We have worked with Midstream for many years and have no doubts that this project will be a great success."

Skem overcome the odds to clinch place in play-offs

Promotion dream still alive after dramatic final day

Skelmersdale United 2
Lower Breck 0

SKELMERSDALE United overcame the odds to finish second in the league and seal that all important play-off position in the final game of the season against Lower Breck, writes Kevin Panther.

Last Saturday's win means the promotion dream is still alive, with Skem set to compete in a play-off clash later this month. The opposition and date is yet to be confirmed.

The fate of second place was unexpectedly in Skem's hands going into the match after challengers Wythenshawe Town suffered a shock midweek defeat at Northwich Victoria.

In front of a bumper crowd at the JMO Sports Park, it was the away side who had the first chance just seconds into the game with a shot on target, but they were unable to beat United goalkeeper Skipper Ben Barnes.

Chances were plentiful in the first half, with both sides testing each other, and Skem had Barnes to thank after a superb save from a point-blank shot.

The home side eventually broke the deadlock after 35 minutes when Alex Griffiths went on a superb run down the wing and crossed for Danny Mitchley to give Skem a 1-0 lead.

At half-time it was 1-0 to Skelmersdale, however during the interval news filtered through that the two teams Wythenshawe Town and Charnock Richard who could deny Skem their play-off position were also winning 1-0. It did nothing to ease the tension up Blaguegate Lane. Providing

It was more of the same in the second half with excellent chances for both sides.

Five minutes from the end Elliott Morris, who was celebrating his birthday, got on the end of a ball in from the left and steered the ball past Lower Breck goalkeeper Ellis Litherland-Riding.

Referee Justin Walton blew the final whistle and there were joyous scenes.

Manager Paul McNally said: "We have made hard work of it in the last few weeks, it is only a job half done as we now face a play-off match."

"As yet we do not know who we will be up against but you can be rest assured we will be doing all we can to get the promotion that our performances this season has deserved."

Linnets finish seventh after defeat at Charnock Richard

Charnock Richard 2
Burscough 1

CHARNOCK Richard started Saturday as one of the two teams who could deny Skelmersdale United their place in the play-offs, writes Neil Leatherbarrow.

To stand any chance they had to defeat Burscough and that did not prove easy to achieve.

Brad Carsley put a shot wide early on, then teenage keeper Mason parried away another effort.

Just after the quarter hour mark Carsley put in a particularly powerful shot that smashed against the crossbar before being cleared.

Burscough were forced to succumb on 19 minutes when experienced striker Carl Grimshaw was threaded through the Linnets' backline by Ashley Young and fired past Mason from the edge of the penalty area.

The game opened up after half-time although Charnock Richard needed the second goal to retain their hopes, Burscough were not going to end their season with a weak defeat.

Burscough equalised on 69 minutes when Denson fired a 25 yard free-kick into the top corner from 25 yards.

Ten minutes from the end it was Charnock Richard who bagged the winner and it was talisman striker Grimshaw who got the winner, heading home off a Jack Gooden cross.

That is the end of Burscough's season and after a poor start and a change of manager they have earned a seventh place finish.

Nurse's 'huge honour'

A NURSE from Burscough has been named the Oncology Nurse of the Year at an awards evening.

Sophie Needham said it was a 'huge honour' after she was recognised at the recent British Journal Nursing Awards.

The 36 year old has worked at Southport Hospital for two and half years - and has been a nurse for 14 years.

She said: "It was such an honour just to be recognised. There were three other candidates and one with more than 37 years in cancer nursing! It was an honour to represent a district general hospital such as Southport and highlight the fantastic work the Acute oncology team.

"To win such a prestigious award so early on in my oncology nursing career is such a huge compliment and inspires me to continue working hard to help those living with cancer and beyond."

When asked for the reasons for her nomination and award win, Sophie said: "We created a mnemonic tool using the word SPINE to prompt practitioners in the management for patients diagnosed with metastatic spinal cord compression (MSCC).

"MSCC affects patients with metastatic cancer in the spine, it is an oncological emergency and can cause irreversible paralysis. This tool has proven to improve patient care, by ensuring that national guidance is followed correctly."

Marketing student secures dream career

AN EDGE Hill University student from Maghull, who impressed her work placement bosses so much that they've already offered her a full-time role, has now been rewarded with a scholarship.

Third-year Marketing with Digital Communications student Anna Bolger has received a £1,000 On-Course Excellence Scholarship after being nominated by her tutor and work-related learning co-ordinator.

It recognises Anna's personal development and the role she's playing in the growth of Morgan Branding, a digital agency in Warrington that works for both big names and start-ups.

Her love of Instagram and Tik Tok, and her creativity in using the channels, has improved and expanded Morgan Branding's social media reach and engagement.

West Lancashire residents are rated kindest in the county, says new survey

THE borough has been rated as the highest in an index which analyses the kindness levels in Lancashire, based on the number of charities per 100,000 people, percentage of recycled waste and the happiness of residents in each local authority.

West Lancashire has the highest recycling rates and the most charities per person and also boasts one of the highest happiness scores.

The research, by care experts Guardian Carers, used ONS data and the government's Register of Charities to explore the figures to discover which areas are the 'most caring.'

South Ribble is the second most caring area of Lancashire, followed by Chorley.

A spokesperson for Guardian

Carers said: "This data offers us a compelling insight into which areas of Lancashire dominate when it comes to kindness in terms of charity support, environmental awareness and happiness ratings, which are a key indicator of collective wellbeing and community support.

Sky-high happiness scores

"Areas such as West Lancashire, South Ribble and Chorley are excellent examples of communities which promote caring for others through charity work and being conscientious about the environment and their local surroundings and this may well be the reason for their sky-high happiness scores."

Forget whether it's a proper Lotus – just go and buy one

LOTUS excels at lightening things. Including, I suspect, this week's Champion, as those of you offended at it launching a crossover simply rip out this page in disgust and chuck it straight in the bin without even reading the rest of this week's column.

It's fair to say the new Eletre, revealed to the public over the past week, has raised a few eyebrows. The chaps in Norfolk call it a "hyper-SUV" – and by that they mean it's a go-faster family wagon with Lamborghini Urus-troubling levels of performance, and emphatically not an off-roader that's going to give anyone at Land Rover sleepless nights.

On first impressions I rather like it. Lotus have managed to make it look just enough like the Evija supercar without ruining the rest of the package – as opposed to Porsche, whose original Cayenne looked like a 911 badly described over a phone call. It'll go like a Lotus too – it'll crack 60mph in less than three seconds, and thanks to trick aerodynamics and copious amounts of aluminium and carbon fibre in its construction, it should handle like one too. Even Grant Shapps is going to enjoy the Eletre, as it's all-electric, can be charged up in 20 minutes, and will whisk you 248 miles before asking for a top-up.

But for some it was all too much, if the sheer weight of opinion from online enthusiasts was anything to go by. Colin Chapman, spinning grave, etc, etc. Forget the fact that Lamborghini, Bentley, Rolls-Royce, Maserati and Jaguar all make SUVs, and one from Ferrari isn't far off – for Lotus to do one is a step too far. And just to add insult to injury, it's not even going to be made in Britain – it's going to be made in Wuhan, the Chinese city best known for COVID-19.

LIFE ON CARS

DAVID SIMISTER

www.lifeoncars.co.uk

Clearly a Lotus SUV is a big ask, but the important thing is that when it does go on sale (and no, there's no word on price yet) is that you buy one. And so do you – yes, you, the person reading The Champion over the shoulder of the person holding it. In fact, tell everyone you know that they simply MUST buy an Eletre, regardless of whether they can afford one or not.

SUVs, whether you love them or loathe them, are the cash cows for virtually every carmaker right now, and without the Eletre there probably won't be any proper sports cars from Lotus further down the line either. The same goes for Lamborghini's Urus – we need people to buy them because otherwise we won't have any more Aventadors, and equally Jaguar needs to shoehorn as many I-Paces into its showrooms because otherwise it won't be able to bankroll any more sports cars. The Eletre could have been terrible, and it still would've been crucial to the future of Lotus.

The fact that it looks like a proper Lotus is a handy bonus. Even if it is one on stilts with five doors.
